My business needs a website but there are so many platforms available:

There are so many platforms available, so don't get too bogged down. I use Wordpress, which is fairly self-explanatory and has a host of different themes.

You can also use Wix to build your website which is easy to use. It depends what you prefer. Take a look at both so you can decide. Also remember you might not need a website at first, you might just want to promote your business through Facebook or Instagram and then build a website at a later stage.
